How do I pay for PALLIATIVE CARE?

Medicare will cover the cost of palliative care services for those patients over the age of 65 who meet the program's eligibility requirements. Medicaid and private insurance companies may also pay for palliative care services. Patients are informed of any possible out-of-pocket costs upon admission to palliative care.

U.S. veterans enrolled in the VHA Medical Benefits Package are eligible for hospice and palliative care coverage if they meet the clinical need for the service. Learn more at the United States Department of Veterans Affairs website at va.gov.
